Section 59

The police have wide ranging powers to deal with people who use their vehicles in an antisocial manner.

Apart from prosecuting offenders for motoring offences that could lead to being disqualified from driving, the police can also rely on a power to seize motor vehicles using Section 59 of the Police Reform Act 2002.

The keeper of the vehicle will be liable to recovery/storage costs when they eventually get the vehicle back.

Section 59 also covers any such use of a motor vehicle off-road, such as common land, moorland, bridle paths, footpaths, tracks and fields. An official complaint does not even have to be received by the police for them to enforce the law.

CUCKOOING

Some drug dealers may target the homes of vulnerable, lonely and isolated people which they then may use for drug dealing, this is known as 'cuckooing'.
